Support Your Local Area Farmers Markets!

New farming methods are being successfully implemented in Virginia and around the world. With understanding of ecosystems and natural processes comes a decreased need for hazardous pesticides and other materials and practices which damage soil and contaminate groundwater supplies.

Biological agriculture involves the use of natural methods and materials, and focuses on soil building, recycling of organic farm materials, and protection of wildlife & water resources.

AND-Aside it being good for you, it's the right thing to do!
